Editor of The Times-Dispatch:
Sir,—An article appeared a few months ago in the "Dispatch" on the subject of redistricting, the tenor of which was to call attention to the evils so often resulting from the disruption of old associations.

suiting from the disruption of old associations.

With all due respect to public men, particularly law-makers, they do not seem to begin to appreciate this as do men engaged in private business, especially the formers of the country, who know that even in the vegetable world it is ruinous to transplant anything unless it is done at the right time and in the right way.

In the simple matter of the alphabet, the mere transposition of the letters in the good old word "preserve" makes it to mean and read the bad one "perverse," which is so often destructive to peace and composure, and there is no department in the life of either the law-maker or politician in which the great principle of conservatism ("keeping together," "gwarding old landmarks," "preserving "gwarding old landmarks," "preserving of conservatism ("keeping together," "guarding old landmarks," "preserving long established conditions") is so literally

Probably the greatest draw-back to this sport is the high price of ammunition. and interests of all the white people of the South and ultimately serious consequences to those of Anglo-Saxons everywhere, this county was one of if not the very first of this tier of counties, to send a Democratic or Conservative member to the Legislature.

Beyond any other county in the State it has stood most steadfastly by the old cardinal doctrines of "non-intervention" and "local self-government." In 1861, when the rest of the State was hesitating and divided, the people of this county assembled in mass-meeting and passed an ordinance solemnly pleaging their smaller confederacy to stand by and with the "greater Confederacy" then sought to be established.

When the intelligence was communicaded to the old war Governor (Governor Lotcher) he made the memorable remark. In this connection it had not been intended to say anything further in regard to Congressional districts.

Soveral weeks ago advices from leading members of the Lagislature indicated that this matfer had been fully and carefully considered and it had been definitely determined that there was no nocessity for and would be no disturbance or derangement of the Fourth District. Later information indicates that there are still some members who plan and propose it, and, while admitting that the population of this district comes fairly up to the general average of all the others, and fully up to, if not above that of eight out of the ton districts in the State, yet contend that the Fourth ought to be altered and made larger for the reason that so large a proportion of its population is colored. This would be a strange and untenable position at any time and, as a bare proposition, is starting and ruinous at this particular time. It would be a sweet morsel under the tongue of the attorneys who are now so violently attacking the Constitution, which so many of our best men lately labored to frame, and, if endorsed, would senable the author (Mr. Crumpacker) to cite the Virginia Legislature as authority for the righteousness of the bill now pending in Congress to "reduce representation," not only in this State, but throughout all the Statis, which are undertaking to protect themselves against the dangers of unlimited suffrage.

In my scientific studies on foods, it has been interesting to note that our soft-batter bread or "spoon bread," where the meal is first scalded, then thinned with eggs and sweet milk, adding only salt and some butter and baking in a deep dish, that the starch grains are more thoroughly burst and ready for digestion than the starch grains of any other bread. What invalid refuses this delicious, wholesome bread? Who refuses to become a convert to the use of corn meal when so served? Atwater gives the

It is an injustice to the negro to attribute to him such a desire and to place so much solicitude and carnestness in the discussion of social equality, for if it is the "inborn race instinct" you claim and not the outcome of prejudice, such discussions are certainly and unquestionably the breeders of prejudice.
